raise a toast with an Irish drinking quote

Frank Sinatra had said, "Alcohol may be man's worst enemy, but the Bible says love your enemy." Well, the Irish certainly love their drink. Is it any wonder that even their coffee has alcohol in it? You can see the Irish fondness for alcohol in Irish drinking quotes and toasts. To know how much an Irishman loves his drink, you can read any Irish drinking quote.

after dinner

why Celtic art?

backwards and forwards all round a page weaving a kind of seamless fabric with no loose ends. To paint such a design, clearly indicating at each of several thousand points the over-and-under passage of the thread, was an exercise in patience as demanding as the more physically strenuous feats of endurance that monks imposed on themselves for the benefits of the soul.

fun facts:

- The longest place name in Ireland is Muckanagherdauhaulia, in County Galway.
- An odd Irish birthday tradition is to lift the birthday child upside down and give his head a few gentle bumps on the floor for good luck. The number of bumps should allegedly correspond to the child's age plus one.
- So long paddy wacker. Wooden truncheons, which have been carried by Irish police since the 1800s, will finally be phased out this year, and replaced by lightweight retractable batons. The truncheons, with notches, fancy carvings and names cut into them, were often passed down generations of gardai.
- The original Guinness Brewery in Dublin has a 9,000 year lease on it's property, at a perpetual rate of 45 Irish pounds per year.
- IRELAND FACT: A Rough Hangover Cure... I'll just take the hangover, thanks: One traditional Irish cure for a hangover was to be buried up to the neck in moist river sand.
